The PSAT and SAT in Colorado

This year, Colorado's ninth-, 10th- and 11th-graders will take the PSAT and SAT assessments, which are aligned to the Colorado Academic Standards and provide other benefits, including free, high-quality practice tools and scholarship opportunities.

College Board's high school assessments

The Colorado legislature passed a law in 2017 that amended the high-school testing requirements and replaced the ninth-grade assessments with one aligned to the Colorado Academic Standards as well as to the 10th-grade assessment. The PSAT that high school sophomores have taken for the past two years is required to be aligned with the state's college entrance exam that 11th-graders take – the SAT. In the spring 2018, Colorado ninth-graders will take the PSAT 8/9 as the statewide assessment in English language arts and math for the first time, replacing the Colorado Measures of Academic Success (CMAS) tests in those subjects for ninth grade.

The 2018 expected test date for the SAT will be April 10. Districts will have a choice of April 10, 11 or 12, as the test date for the PSAT for ninth- and 10th-graders.

Colorado selected the PSAT and SAT because the College Board's reports and free test preparation services could be used by all students. The College Board's system can also connect students with resources and activities designed to help identify next steps for extra support or possible acceleration.

Improving outcomes for all students

The PSAT and SAT focus on concepts and skills that matter for college and career readiness. They are designed to inform instruction and ultimately help improve student outcomes. The tests can help identify students who are falling behind so teachers can intervene, and they can provide indicators to students' readiness for advanced coursework and to keep them on target for college.
