Introducing the PSAT and SAT in Colorado

The PSAT and SAT exams will provide Colorado's 10th- and 11th-graders with assessments aligned to each other and the Colorado Academic Standards, and provide benefits such as free, high-quality practice tools and scholarship opportunities.

Why the PSAT and SAT?

In 2015 the legislature passed House Bill 1323, requiring the state to competitively bid for a new 10th-grade exam that is aligned to the Colorado Academic Standards and an 11th-grade college entrance exam. The selection committee chose the PSAT for 10th-graders and the SAT for the 11th-grade college entrance exam because of their alignment to the high school Colorado Academic Standards and because the College Board's reports and free test preparation services could be used by all students. The College Board's system can connect students with resources and activities designed to help identify next steps for extra support or possible acceleration.

Tenth-graders in Colorado began taking the PSAT in the spring of 2016 and will no longer take the CMAS tests in English language arts and math. The CMAS English language arts and math tests have also been discontinued for 11th-graders, who took the ACT in the spring of 2016. During the spring of 2017 11th-graders will transition to the SAT. The PSAT and SAT will be given each spring for the following five years.

Improving outcomes for all students

The PSAT and SAT focus on concepts and skills that matter most for college and career readiness. They are designed to inform instruction and ultimately help improve student outcomes. The tests can help identify students who are falling behind so teachers can intervene, and they can provide indicators to students' readiness for AP coursework and to keep them on target for college.
