Dear Julia Shepherd:

The Young Americans Center for Financial Education would like to continue our support and partnership with C3 to deliver a classroom experience inside the only real bank designed for children in the United States, Young Americans Bank. With over 20 years of Financial Literacy education experience the Young Americans Center for Financial Literacy is well positioned to support the creative learning environment that is in line with the mission of C3. Initially we can look to offer classroom space, access to the only children's bank in the country, access to our interactive educational computer programs, and staffs support to help your students meet the 21st Century Content Standards as they relate to financial literacy. We look forward to continuing this relationship going forward.

Sincerely,

Nathan Wannlund
Vice President, Programs
