This unit was authored by a team of Colorado educators. The template provided one example of unit design that enabled teacher-authors to organize possible learning experiences, resources, differentiation, and assessments. The unit is intended to support teachers, schools, and districts as they make their own local decisions around the best instructional plans and practices for all students.
Standard 1. History
1. Formulate appropriate hypotheses about United States history based on a variety of historical sources and perspectives
2. The historical eras, individuals, groups, ideas and themes from the origins of the American Revolution through Reconstruction and their relationships with one another

Standard 2. Geography
1. Use geographic tools to analyze patterns in human and physical systems

Critical Content:

My students will Know...

- The definitions of credit and debt (SSO9-GR.8- S.3-GLE.2-EO.b)*
- Different forms of credit and debt
- Components of credit history
- How technology allows individuals to research costs, analyze sources of credit, access personal credit scores, and track personal finances
- Strategies for managing credit and debt

Key Skills:

My students will be able to (Do)...

- Analyze, compare, and describe the components of credit and credit history (SSO9-GR.8- S.3-GLE.2-EO.b,c,d)*
- Compare the advantages and disadvantages of different methods of payment
- Analyze the cost of borrowing for such items as buying a car (SSO9-GR.8-S.3.-GLE.2-RA.2)*
- Use a financial or online calculator to determine the total cost of repaying a loan under various rates of interest and over different time periods
- Analyze a credit card offer and a credit card statement

Critical Language: includes the Academic and Technical vocabulary, semantics, and discourse which are particular to and necessary for accessing a given discipline.

EXAMPLE: A student in Language Arts can demonstrate the ability to apply and comprehend critical language through the following statement: "Mark Twain exposes the hypocrisy of slavery through the use of satire."

A student in ____________ can demonstrate the ability to apply and comprehend critical language through the following statement(s):

Consumers may use credit frequently, but many struggle to manage it wisely. To make sound financial decisions, consumers need to understand their credit, assess their credit scores, and manage their budget.

Academic Vocabulary: Compare/contrast, analyze, advantage, disadvantage

Technical Vocabulary: Credit, debt, debit, cost, credit history, economic reasoning, interest rate, debit card, credit card, finance charge, principal, consumer, loan, borrow, purchase, credit score, risk, budget, term

* Denotes connection to Personal Financial Literacy (PFL)
Unit Description:
In this unit, the students will learn the basic concepts of credit and debt. Students will formulate strategies for making good financial decisions by investigating different types of credit, loans, and the costs associated with using credit. Students will also discover the importance of maintaining debt. The unit culminates with students demonstrating the practical application of personal financial literacy using the basic concepts of credit, debt and management skills to make educated financial decisions.

Considerations:
A new unit overview (2015) entitled, Money Matters was developed for the 8th grade personal financial literacy standards. This instructional unit was created to enhance student knowledge of personal finances and enable students to make sound financial decisions using their economic reasoning skills.

Key Generalization:
Using credit results in debt that can be managed in healthy and/or unhealthy ways

Supporting Generalizations:
- Different forms of credit (e.g., mortgage, auto loan, credit cards) can provide individuals with opportunities to obtain goods and services based on a promise of repayment over time
- Personal knowledge of credit history can inform effective decision-making for the management of credit and debt

Performance Assessment: The capstone/summative assessment for this unit.

<td>Stimulus Material: (Engaging scenario that includes role, audience, goal/outcome and explicitly connects the key generalization)</td>
<td>Everyone is a consumer and is responsible for making economic choices. As an adult, decisions about credit and debt will need to be made in regards to buying a car, paying for college or trade school, owning a business, etc. You are a member of a team of financial planners who travel around Colorado giving seminars on credit resources and debt management. Your seminar focuses on the cost, risks, and benefits of using credit. The seminar is critical for consumers in their understanding of credit and debt; therefore, you should include both a visual and oral aspect to your presentation (e.g. Prezi, PowerPoint, poster board). The content of your seminar should include key terms, purchasing and/or loan options, current interest rates, and strategies for locating, obtaining, and managing credit and debt. In addition to the presentation, create a one page handout detailing the costs, risks, and benefits of your topic (e.g., auto, student loans) for your seminar participants.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Product/Evidence: (Expected product from students)</td>
<td>Students may work in groups of 3 – 4 to develop a financial seminar. The focus of the seminar will be different for each group. For example, a seminar may focus on credit card use/management or taking out a personal loan to pay for a trip around the world. Both the presentation and the handout should include an analysis of the costs, risks, and benefits of credit and debt for the seminar topic.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Differentiation: (Multiple modes for student expression)</td>
<td>Students may be grouped according to ability and topic. For example, students could be challenged through a choice of topic such as business ownership, while some students could be provided with a topic of the teacher’s choosing.</td>

Critical Content:

- Basic economic principle: resources are scarce
- The scarcity of resources means that consumers must pay a price for using them
- Types of goods and services
- Examples of wants and needs
- Definitions of consumer, producer, opportunity cost

Key Skills:

- Differentiate between wants and needs
- Identify different types of goods and services
- Explain that resources are allocated by markets to provide goods and services people most want

Critical Language:
Want, needs, goods, services, consumer, producer, saving, income, cost, profit, choice, opportunity cost, scarcity, human resources, capital resources, natural resources

Learning Experience # 2

The teacher may provide samples of financial decision making matrices and flowcharts, so that students can examine their financial decision making processes and formulate strategies for making sound financial decisions.

Generalization Connection(s):

- Balancing a personal budget
- Monitor a checking account/debit card in accordance with your budget
- Prioritize personal and financial goals

Critical Language:

- Budget, income, expenses, checking account, checkbook, debit card, long term goals, short term goals, fixed expense, variable expense

Learning Experience # 4

The teacher may provide case studies/scenarios so that students can examine the advantages and disadvantages of using various payment methods (i.e., cash, debit, credit, loans).

Generalization Connection(s):

- Different forms of credit (e.g., mortgage, auto loan, credit cards) can provide individuals with opportunities to obtain goods and services based on a promise of repayment over time.
- Using credit results in debt that can be managed in healthy and/or unhealthy ways.

Extensions for depth and complexity:

Students may write a “tip sheet” highlighting the costs and benefits of using debit cards and credit cards to share with their parents

Critical Content:
- Examples of cash, credit cards, checks, gift certificates
- Cash, checks, and debit cards are forms of money (as opposed to credit which is not money, but a loan)
- The factors that come into play when consumers make choices about whether to pay with cash or credit
- The advantages and disadvantages of using cash and credit

Key Skills:
- Analyze the opportunity cost of using credit and various forms of cash payments
- Differentiate between forms of cash payment and credit
- Explain how interest is calculated

Critical Language:
Debt, debit card, credit card, cost and benefits, loan, interest, saving, cash, check, checkbook, ATM

Learning Experience # 9

The teacher may provide scenarios illustrating healthy and unhealthy debt (see pg. 2a of In Trouble student activity guide for scenarios) so that students can explain the importance of having a healthy debt to income ratio and what to do if that “healthy” ratio becomes “unhealthy.”

| Generalization Connection(s): | Different forms of credit (e.g., mortgage, auto loan, credit cards) can provide individuals with opportunities to obtain goods and services based on a promise of repayment over time. Using credit results in debt that can be managed in healthy and/or unhealthy ways. Personal knowledge of credit history can inform effective decision-making for the management of credit and debt. |
