Program Overview – 1 paragraph maximum- needs to be cut down	Generation Schools Network (GSN) in partnership with Battelle for Kids (BFK) and Colorado State University Global Campus (CSU-Global) offers schools and districts a unique site and team-based approach to school turnaround leadership education. The Program culminates in a Graduate Certificate in Turnaround Leadership for three program participants per school and the opportunity to articulate courses towards the Master of Science in Teaching and Learning and/or the Principal Licensure Concentration at CSU-Global. The two-year program engages the school leadership team in a blended learning experience consisting of on-line coursework, on-site coaching and two summer retreats. Together GSN, BFK and CSU-Global bring the best of their experience supporting schools into a cohesive, customized program that will increase the leadership capacity of the school/district and develop a knowledgeable, focused school leadership team that collaboratively prioritizes goals and initiatives to impact student success.

Program Touch Points - When and in what format will participants interact with you as the provider during the program?	The two-year blended learning program consists of online coursework, on-site coaching and two summer retreats. The online learning platform, Schoology, delivers the four courses aligned to graduate level courses at CSU-Global. Each course has three modules (see Program Areas of Focus) and is completed in approximately 6 months. Course requirements include readings, videos, discussion posts/responses, school team meeting notes, and authentic, customized projects designed to move the school forward toward improving outcomes. The great majority of the projects are developed and submitted for review by the entire school leadership team (the principal and up to five faculty members) creating critical alignment. Monthly, the GSN Coach spends time on-site at the school and completes classroom walk throughs with the principal prior to meeting with the school leadership team. During these school leadership team meetings, program content is discussed and customized to meet the unique challenges faced by each school and projects are completed to address those challenges. The highly experienced GSN Coach is available to the participants via telephone and email and meets with the School Superintendent either in person or virtually on a monthly basis to provide status updates. Additional focused time on turnaround work is provided by two summer retreats, each approximately three days in length. Retreats also provide an opportunity for participants to learn from other school(s) in their cohort that are facing and overcoming similar challenges.
