Step Three: ADAPT MULTI-TIERED FSCP TOOLS, INCLUDING SPECIFIC SPECIAL EDUCATION SUPPORTS (More About How)

Information
Annotated List: Slide Presentation with Notes, Articles, Research Brief, Multi-Tiered Tools, and Specific Special Education Supports

These materials are intended to provide a shared base of partnering understanding and information, both from the research and the field. The documents purposely include different formats so as to provide the information in various ways to meet a continuum of needs in diverse sites or situations. They are intended to be practical, useable, and shareable. Some are summaries or handouts, some articles, and some can be considered specific tools or measures. Articles or summary documents are listed in alphabetical order by title, with citations listed below annotation. Tools or data sources are categorized by use and/or primary support tier.

Slide Presentation with Notes

- Includes slides and notes ready to be shared with others; can be abbreviated or adapted for a specific site or situation; presents an overview and is referenced.

Articles

- Making Data Matter in Family Engagement

  Highlights the importance of a “data pathway” in supporting families and schools’ work in improving student achievement at all levels - for instructional decision making, transitioning, and crafting school success for every student.

- Maximum Homework Impact: Optimizing Time, Purpose, Communications, and Collaboration

  Frames homework as an important instructional strategy when implemented effectively citing research and related optimizing strategies.

Tools

Stakeholders can adapt and apply these tools for a specific site or situation. They were developed with different focus areas, tier application, and a continuum of how MTSS is implemented in various schools and districts. They are intended to save stakeholder time and provide sample partnering language. Many were reviewed by family members so as to ensure appropriateness and were revised based on that feedback. These can be used to implement action plans and guide practice.

Multi-Tiered Tools

Universal Tier

School

Provides practical tools that help implement universal partnering throughout a school community; the more these are shared and applied the more aligned the messaging is about how to partner effectively with all families, educators, and community resources.
