Educational Identification of Complex ASD Cases: Culturally and Linguistically Responsive Evaluations

Overview:

Children from culturally and linguistically minoritized populations are more likely to be misidentified or receive a delayed educational identification of ASD. This workshop will provide school professionals with advanced training pertaining to considerations regarding ASD assessment practices when working with traditionally underserved children, including children that are economically vulnerable, racially/ethnically minoritized and linguistically diverse. In addition, participants will receive training in differentiating ASD from other disabilities. Further, information will be shared regarding laws and recommendations pertaining to addressing significant disproportionality among children with ASD. This training will be presented by Dr. Bryn Harris from the University of Colorado Denver. Dr. Harris has extensive expertise in this content area.

Participant Details:

Pre-requisite: This training is ONLY available to those who have completed the 2-day CDE Educational Identification of ASD Toolkit training.

- Confirmation emails will be sent to registered individuals who meet this requirement (we maintain a list of past participants)
- Registration is limited

School professionals involved in ASD educational identification assessment are encouraged to attend (i.e. school psychologists, school social workers, speech/language pathologists, special education teachers, occupational therapists).

Cost:

The Exceptional Student Services Unit of the Colorado Department of Education provides the funding for the presenters. There will be no reimbursement provided to participants.

CDE Certificate:

Participants must attend both sessions to receive a certificate of attendance (6 CDE hours). Partial credit will not be given.
