Sheridan School District will utilize funds to provide tutoring services that focus on CDE-approved intervention programs: Lexia Core 5 and i-Ready. Sheridan will use READ Act funds to support a weekly afterschool tutoring club run by teachers trained in evidence-based reading instruction for grades K-3. Our data indicate that a large population of students entering 3rd grade, 45% of the grade level, is identified as reading significantly below grade level. We want to provide additional, targeted reading support for our SRD students and those who are on the cusp of needing a READ plan. This year-long tutoring club will support phonological awareness, phonics, vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension within a hybrid-based model. Students will receive small-group instruction using Lexia Core 5 and iReady lessons to strengthen their growth in foundational reading skills. Just Right Reader decodable texts will be used to support specific skill deficits for data-informed small groups. The expected outcome of providing year-long professional development for K-3 teachers and instructional support assistants to learn, analyze data, plan targeted instructional next steps, and reflect on practices is to create a cohesive and consistent data and coaching cycle. The goal would be to reduce the number of students on READ plans by 20% and limit the number of students exiting 3rd-grade reading significantly below grade level.

The tutoring service is focused on increasing students' foundational reading skills of phonemic awareness, phonics, vocabulary development, reading fluency including oral skills, and reading comprehension for students who receive instructional services pursuant to READ plans

Our data indicates that a large population of students K-3 are identified as reading significantly below grade level with significant deficits in the phonemic and phonics domain. We want to provide additional, targeted decoding practice that specifically addresses the individual skill deficits of our SRD students participating in the tutoring program. Teachers and instructional support assistants will analyze weekly data to inform and adjust small group instruction to close these domain gaps. These decodable readers will then be repurposed for future use in K-3 classrooms during small groups, tutoring programs, and intervention programs. The expected outcome of providing supplemental materials for K-3 teachers and instructional support assistants is to have additional resources to plan targeted instructional next steps identified by our reading assessment programs (iReady and Lexia Core 5). During the 23-24 school year, K-3 teachers engaged in professional learning around an effective decodable reader routine and these resources will support continued implementation of this small group practice. The goal would be to reduce the number of students on READ plans by 20% and limit the number of students exiting 3rd-grade reading significantly below grade level.
