Amends the "Public School Finance Act of 1994" in the following respects:

• For the 2007-08 budget year, increases the statewide base per pupil funding to $5,087.61, which reflects an increase over the preceding budget year of 3.6% for inflation plus one percentage point.

• Beginning in the 2007-08 budget year, allows a school district to count and receive funding for a pupil enrolled in first grade who is at least 5 years old on or before October 1 of the applicable budget year, if the pupil has attended at least 120 days of kindergarten in a state other than Colorado.

• Beginning in the 2007-08 budget year, changes the minimum per pupil funding from a stated dollar amount to a stated percentage of the statewide average per pupil funding, excluding on-line funding, for the applicable budget year. Specifically, for the 2007-08 budget year, increases minimum per pupil funding to an amount equal to 94.3% of said average and for the 2008-09 budget year and future budget years, increases minimum per pupil funding to an amount equal to 95% of said average.

• Disconnects on-line funding from minimum per pupil funding beginning in the 2007-08 budget year, and continues to fund on-line pupils pursuant to the existing statutory formula.

• Beginning in the 2007-08 budget year, allows a school district that sells lands or buildings, collects payments in lieu of the reservation or dedication of sites and land areas for schools, or collects contributions as a result of a voluntary agreement with a developer, and deposits the proceeds of the payments or collections into the district's capital reserve fund to reduce the total amount of per pupil revenues that the district is required to allocate to the fund by an amount equal to the amount of the payments or collections deposited into the fund.

• Beginning in the 2007 property tax year, for a school district that has obtained voter approval to retain and spend revenues in excess of the property tax revenue limitation imposed on the district by section 20 of article X of the state constitution (TABOR), eliminates the requirement that the district reduce its mill levy so that the district generates the maximum amount of property tax revenue that it can retain under the property tax revenue limits imposed by TABOR.

• Requires each school district that has obtained voter approval to retain and spend excess property tax revenue to levy the lesser of: The number of mills levied by the district for the immediately preceding property tax year; the number of mills that will generate the district's total program for the applicable budget year, minus the minimum state share; or 27 mills.

• Requires each school district that has not obtained voter approval to retain and spend excess property tax revenue to levy the lesser of: The number of mills levied by the district for the immediately preceding property tax year; the number of mills that will generate the district's total program for the applicable budget year, minus the minimum state share; the number of mills that will generate the maximum amount of property tax revenue that the district can retain under the property tax revenue limits imposed by TABOR; or 27 mills.

• Sets a $300,000 cap for the total amount of aid that a declining enrollment school district in which a new district charter school opens may receive in the budget year in which the new district charter school opens. • Allows a charter school that operates in a facility that is listed on the state inventory of real property and improvements and that is obligated to make lease payments for use of the facility to receive moneys appropriated for charter school capital construction.

Allows a school district or group care facility or home that has received an overpayment of state funding an amount of time to repay the overpayment, without interest, that is equal to the number of years since the last audit of the district, facility, or home. Allows a district, facility, or home that is unable to repay the overpayment within the specified period to enter into an agreement with the department of education for the repayment of the remaining amount, with interest. Changes the interest rate charged on repayments of overpayments, when applicable, to a rate that is equal to the earnings on the treasury pooled funds for the previous fiscal year.

Clarifies that an administrative unit that incurs high costs in providing special educational services to a child with disabilities may apply for a high-cost grant to recover all or a portion of the costs, regardless of the child's district of residence. In awarding high-cost grants, directs the Colorado special education fiscal advisory committee to first prioritize certain administrative units with one or more children being served in an out-of-district placement before prioritizing administrative units with one or more children being served in an in-district placement.

Amends the Colorado Preschool and Kindergarten Program Act CPKP) as follows:

• For the 2007-08 budget year, allows a total of 16,360 children to participate annually in the CPKP statewide; and for the 2008-09 budget year and future budget years, allows a total of 19,860 children to participate annually in the CPKP statewide.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTIONS

S.J.R. 07-008 (Senate Joint Resolution) Recognition of Colorado School Psychologists. In 2001, Surgeon General David Satcher released a National Action Agenda for Children's Mental Health, which stated that the nation is facing a public crisis in mental health for children and adolescents.

In the United States, one in ten children and adolescents suffer from mental illness severe enough to cause some level of impairment, yet, in any given year, it is estimated that fewer than 20% of these children receive necessary treatment.

The long-term consequences of untreated childhood disorders are costly, in both human and fiscal terms.

The Surgeon General's report found that the school system is the largest provider of mental health services to children and adolescents and, for many of these children, is the only source of mental health care.

School psychology is one of three unique areas of psychological practice as defined by the American Psychological Association.

The philosophy of practice and the techniques used in school psychology have emphasized health promotion, disease prevention, early detection, and direct services to children, as needed. School psychologists are working to remove barriers to children's learning in every school district in Colorado, and are often the only mental health service available to children and parents in certain counties.

School psychologists develop programs to train teachers and parents regarding effective teaching and learning strategies, develop successful techniques to manage behavior at home and in the classroom, and develop programs to work with students with disabilities or special talents.

Colorado school psychologists deserve recognition for their hard work to give Colorado students a brighter and healthier future.

The members of the Colorado General Assembly concur that they recognize Colorado school psychologists' efforts to enhance the mental health and educational competence of all children; and acknowledge that Colorado school psychologists strengthen working relationships between teachers, parents, and service providers in the community.

Adopted by the General Assembly January 29, 2007.

S.J.R. 07-016 Commemoration of career and technical education month. February 2007 has been designated Career and Technical Education Month by the Association for Career and Technical Education.

The structure and nature of the modern workplace reflect the rapid and profound economic and technological changes in our society, thereby placing new responsibilities on our education system.

Career and technical education provides Americans with a school-to-careers connection and is the backbone of a strong, well-educated workforce, which fosters productivity in business and industry and contributes to America's leadership in the international marketplace.

Career and technical education gives high school students practical, meaningful applications of relevant academic skills such as reading, writing, and mathematics, thus improving the quality of their education, retaining under-represented youth in education, and giving all students leadership opportunities in their fields of study and in their communities. Career and technical education teaches lifelong skills that prepare individuals for postsecondary opportunities and provides them with high-skill, high-wage, and high-demand career choices.

The ever-increasing cooperative efforts of career and technical educators, business, and industry stimulate the growth and vitality of our local and national economies by preparing graduates for career fields with forecasts for the largest and fastest growth in the next decade.

Career and technical education programs are a vital part of Colorado's education system, with 37% of high school students from over 160 school districts enrolled in one or more career and technical education programs.

Of the more than 80,000 Colorado secondary students enrolled in career and technical education this year, 94% of those who completed the program were either employed in jobs related to their fields of study one year later or were continuing their education, which reflects the impressive success of these programs.

Career and technical education in Colorado is rigorous, with nearly two-thirds of participating high school students entering postsecondary programs and with the nearly 30,000 postsecondary students having over 600 career and technical education fields from which to choose.

The members of the Colorado General Assembly proclaim the month of February as Career and Technical Education Month in Colorado.

Adopted by the General Assembly February 28, 2007.

S.J.R. 07-34 Recognition of the Colorado Parent-Teacher Association and its one-hundredth anniversary. In 1907, the Colorado Congress of Mothers was established to ensure that all Colorado children would be offered a quality education and better health.

Colorado Governor Oliver Shoup signed an act in 1919 to create the Colorado Child Welfare Bureau, which provided for the promotion of community organizations in every county in the state.

In 1920, Colorado Congress of Mothers' President Margaret Crawford Campbell urged the creation of "a parent-teacher association in every school in the state". The Colorado Congress of Mothers changed its name in 1924 to the Colorado Congress of Parents and Teachers to better reflect the comprehensive nature of the organization.

The Colorado Congress of Parents and Teachers supported a law in 1937 allowing counties to enact a mill levy for the establishment of county libraries and another law that increased and stabilized financial support for public schools.

During World War II, the Colorado Congress of Parents and Teachers supported efforts in support of "maintaining the home front" while still supporting legislation for better teacher salaries and safer construction of school buses.

In 1957, the Colorado Congress of Parents and Teachers contributed to new childhood immunization programs by conducting surveys in cooperation with the state health department.

In 1964, Governor John Love proclaimed October as "PTA Enrollment Membership Month" in Colorado for all subsequent years of his administration.

Past Colorado Parent-Teacher Association President Mary Lou Anderson established the Reflections Program with the National PTA in 1969 to promote arts recognition and achievement, and, since its inception, over 10 million students have participated in the program.

During 1975 and 1976, the Colorado Congress of Parents and Teachers, known today as the Colorado PTA, participated in the Violence on Television Program, which helped to improve the quality of television programs.

First Lady Nancy Reagan recognized the Colorado PTA in 1987 for its efforts to support the "Just Say No" drug prevention campaign.

In 1999, the Colorado PTA united with the state and the nation in mourning the victims of the Columbine High School tragedy.

The Colorado PTA participated in 2000 in a successful coalition to pass a state constitutional amendment to increase and stabilize revenues for kindergarten through 12th-grade education.

The Colorado PTA supported successful legislation during this legislative session pertaining to school security and organ donation in the wake of the school-shooting death of Emily Keys. The Colorado PTA has been advocating for children, families, and public schools for the past 100 years.

The Colorado PTA continues its mission of supporting and speaking on behalf of children, assisting parents in developing skills to raise and protect their children, and encouraging greater parental involvement.

The members of the Colorado General Assembly fully support the mission of the Colorado PTA and commemorate the occasion of its 100th anniversary, "A Century Dedicated to Children".

Adopted by the General Assembly April 19, 2007.

S.J.R. 07-043 Recognition of Colorado YMCA Advocacy Day. Colorado YMCAs are part of an international movement serving more than 45 million people in more than 120 countries.

Colorado YMCAs have a strong presence in a national movement with 20.2 million members located in every state and territory of the United States.

The first YMCA in Colorado was established in Denver in 1875, two years before the Colorado General Assembly was convened.

Colorado YMCAs serve more than 523,000 people in diverse communities statewide, bringing together young and old, men and women, and people of all faiths, backgrounds, and incomes.

Colorado YMCAs raise more than $2.6 million annually for scholarships, subsidies, and other community services and, in so doing, relieve some of the financial burden on government.

Colorado YMCAs serve nearly 165,000 youth during non-school hours and give children the opportunity to participate in a wide range of activities, including teen clubs, sports leagues, family nights, community service projects, and gang prevention programs.

Colorado YMCAs are the largest providers of child care in the state, serving more than 7,900 children per day and offering affordable, high-quality child care to working families, regardless of their abilities to pay.

Colorado YMCAs provide health and fitness programs as an integral part of their mission, focusing on preventative health care, healthy lifestyles, and rehabilitative services with an emphasis on childhood obesity prevention, adult fitness, and programs for active older adults.

Colorado YMCAs teach the following four core values in all of their programs: Respect, responsibility, honesty, and caring.

Colorado YMCAs partner with neighborhood organizations, working with local and county governments, including police and fire departments, public housing developments and children's services, schools, churches, and other community and civic organizations.

Colorado YMCAs are volunteer-founded, volunteer-based, and volunteer-led organizations with nearly 12,200 volunteers who give their time to meet the needs of their local communities.

The members of the Colorado General Assembly proclaim April 25, 2007, to be Colorado YMCA Day in the state of Colorado.

Adopted by the General Assembly April 25, 2007.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTIONS

H.J.R. 07-1014 Recognition of Community Mental Health Centers and Behavioral Health Organizations in Colorado. Mental health disorders and illnesses affect approximately 20% of the population, but most of these disorders are treatable.

Persons with mental disorders who have access to local, community-based prevention, intervention, and treatment services are much less likely to require the more expensive alternatives of hospitalization or incarceration, and their chances of becoming homeless are greatly reduced.

For over 40 years, nonprofit community mental health centers and clinics have provided comprehensive mental health services to indigent and underinsured citizens of Colorado by partnering with the state to best utilize available local, state, and federal funding.

Behavioral health organizations have successfully administered the mental health benefits of the state Medicaid program for over a decade, saving the state of Colorado millions of dollars while connecting clients with available community mental health services, thereby improving treatment outcomes.

Community mental health centers and behavioral health organizations work with other services providers and mental health advocates to promote treatments for children and adults that include 24-hour emergency evaluations and acute treatment, primary care integration, substance abuse treatment, case management, early intervention, school-based counseling, vocational training, family services, clubhouses, older adult services, parenting education, and housing assistance.

In 2006, community mental health centers and clinics served approximately 95,000 Colorado citizens, about 30,000 of whom were under 18 years of age.

Of the total number of persons served by the centers, approximately 35% were Medicaid clients while others received services through various funding sources.

Community mental health centers and clinics served an extremely diverse population in 2006, including 68.1% Caucasian, 18.5% Hispanic, 5.3% African-American, 4.6% multiracial, 1.3% American Indian/Alaskan, 0.6% Asian-American, 0.2% Native Hawaiian, and 1.3% of other descent.

Community mental health centers, working with behavioral health organizations, serve as the outpatient safety-net providers for mental health care in all regions of the state, and the centers are the medical homes for many children and adults with mental disorders or illnesses who would otherwise be unable to access muchneeded mental health treatment.

The members of the Colorado General Assembly recognize the vital role played by community mental health centers and behavioral health organizations in Colorado's system of health care. The members express their appreciation and gratitude to all those individuals who dedicate time, energy, and hard work to this challenging but critical area of community health care.

Adopted by the General Assembly February 14, 2007.

H.J.R. 07-1021 Recognition of Liberty Day and Liberty Month in Colorado. We as Americans enjoy our liberties as a result of the documents that our founding fathers created, those documents being the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution with its Bill of Rights.

James Madison was a contributing author of the Virginia Plan, which was the model and the basis of discussion for forming a new constitution in the Constitutional Convention of 1787, and the new constitution replaced the Articles of Confederation and established our new form of government.

James Madison kept written records of the debates in the Constitutional Convention of 1787, which debates and compromises finally produced the Constitution of the United States.

Such records were not made public until the last signer James Madison, died, and his wife, Dolley Madison, sold the records to the United States government, and they were published around 1840.

James Madison wrote many of the newspaper articles that outlined the reasons that the states should endorse the new constitution.

These articles, which were co-written with Alexander Hamilton and John Jay, became known as the Federalist Papers and still stand as some of the best arguments for our form of government, a representative republic.

James Madison served in the United States House of Representatives from 1789 until 1797, during which time he introduced into Congress the Bill of Rights, which was ratified by the states in 1791.

James Madison served as Secretary of State from 1801 until 1809 and as President of the United States from 1809 until 1817.

Friday, March 16, 2007 is the birthday of James Madison.

The Colorado General Assembly has resolved that Friday, March 16, 2007 be proclaimed Liberty Day in Colorado and that March 2007 be proclaimed Liberty Month in Colorado.

Adopted by the General Assembly March 16, 2007.

H.J.R. 07-1030 Recognition of Colorado charter schools. There are at least 130 operating charter schools in Colorado with a combined enrollment of over 53,000 students.

Through innovation and a focus on quality education, charter schools contribute to the statewide efforts to improve education in Colorado.

Charter schools serve a broad diversity of students, including low-income, ethnic minorities, and children with disabilities or other special needs. Charter schools have struggled to find adequate financing for facilities and continue to need support in financing and maintaining facilities.

On many occasions, charter schools have had to overcome adversity to exist.

The founders of charter schools have been some of the most courageous and focused educators in their struggle to get their schools authorized.

The academic achievement of the students in charter schools has consistently been among the highest in the state.

Charter schools have helped all public schools in the state focus on the appropriate mission of academic excellence and achievement.

Charter schools are not created as alternatives to non-charter public schools but rather as a crucial part of offering choice in education to parents and students.

Charter schools enhance what school districts already offer.

Charter schools encourage community and parental involvement in the education of the state's youth.

This year marks the fourteenth anniversary of the passage of the Charter Schools Act.

The members of the Colorado General Assembly join the Colorado League of Charter Schools in celebrating the accomplishments and contributions of charter schools to public education; and proclaim the week commencing April 2, 2007, as "Colorado Charter Schools Week" in Colorado.

Adopted by the General Assembly April 20, 2007.

H.J.R. 07-1031 Colorado pedestrian month, Colorado walk to school month, and Colorado walks Wednesdays. Walking contributes to improved health, safer streets, stronger communities, and a cleaner natural environment.

Children walk to and from neighborhood schools during the busiest times of the day when many motorists are rushing to and from work.

On average in the United States, a pedestrian is killed in a traffic crash every 108 minutes, with children age 15 and younger accounting for 8% of pedestrian fatalities and 28% of all pedestrian injuries in 2005. Hundreds of children and adults could be saved each year if every community made pedestrian safety a priority.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends that neighborhoods and local agencies work together to identify and create safe routes to school.

"Complete Streets" are designed and operated to enable safe access for all users, including people who use wheelchairs, have vision impairments, and for older adults and children.

In the United States, 66% of adults are obese and 17% of children are overweight.

More than 60% of all adults in the United States do not engage in the recommended amount of physical activity, and this lack of regular physical exercise can lead to illness and chronic diseases that result in billions of dollars in health care costs each year.

Increasing regular moderate physical activity among the more than 88 million inactive Americans over the age of 15 might reduce annual health care costs by as much as $76.6 billion.

The Institute of Medicine of the National Academies recommends fighting childhood obesity by encouraging communities to improve the streets, sidewalks, and street-crossing safety of routes to school, develop programs to encourage walking and bicycling to school, and build schools within walking and bicycling distance of the neighborhoods they serve.

Adults, children, and adolescents can improve their health by engaging in moderate-intensity physical activities, such as walking, regularly during the week.

Walking is an ideal low-impact exercise that has multiple health benefits such as the ability to reduce the risk of heart disease and cancer, lower total cholesterol, raise healthy HDL cholesterol, lower blood pressure, maintain healthy bones and muscles, stabilize blood sugar, improve immunity, and relieve stress.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services defines a healthy community as "one that embraces the belief that health is more than merely an absence of disease; a healthy community includes those elements that enable people to maintain a high quality of life and productivity". More than one quarter of all daily household car trips are one mile or less and almost half are under five miles.

The "Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991", subsequently reauthorized in 2005 as the "Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficient Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users", calls for all states to consider the needs of pedestrians and bicyclists whenever new roads are constructed or existing roads are reconstructed.

Children, parents, and community leaders throughout the world are joining together to evaluate pedestrian safety in their communities and celebrate International Walk to School Month each October.

The members of the Colorado General Assembly have resolved that:

- (1) The month of October shall permanently be designated as "Colorado Pedestrian Month".
- (2) The month of October shall permanently be designated as "Colorado Walk to School Month" to coincide with "International Walk to School Month".
- (3) Every Wednesday throughout the year shall permanently be designated as "Colorado Walks Wednesdays".
- (4) The Colorado General Assembly encourages the residents of Colorado to participate in "Colorado Pedestrian Month", "Colorado Walks Wednesdays", and "Colorado Walk to School Month", and to increase their awareness of pedestrian safety while finding ways to increase the number of walking trips into their daily lives.

Adopted by the General Assembly April 20, 2007.

H.J.R. 07-1033 National library week in Colorado. Our nation's public, academic, school, and specialized libraries support the quality of life in their communities and serve as a transforming force in those communities.

Librarians are trained professionals who assist people of all ages and backgrounds in finding and interpreting the information they need to live, learn, and work in the 21st century. As places for opportunity, education, self-help, and lifelong learning, libraries are part of the "American Dream".

Libraries provide a world of knowledge both in person and online.

Libraries are crucial to the national discourse on intellectual freedom, equity of access, and narrowing the "digital divide".

Libraries across America are celebrating National Library Week, April 15-21, 2007, with the "Campaign for America's Libraries".

The Members of the Colorado General Assembly:

- Proclaim the week commencing April 15, 2007, as "National Library Week" in Colorado;
- (2) Encourage all residents of Colorado to visit their libraries to take advantage of the wonderful library resources available; and
- (3) Thank librarians and library workers for making information accessible to all who walk through the library's doors.

Adopted by the General Assembly April 20, 2007.

H.J.R. 07-1035 Recognition of home education day in Colorado.

The state of Colorado is committed to excellence in education.

The state recognizes the importance of parental choices in pursuit of educational excellence and the significance of family involvement in education.

The state of Colorado recognizes the rights of parents to direct the education and upbringing of their children.

Home education is a part of America's national heritage, as evidenced in the formative years of home-educated Americans such as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Abigail Adams, Patrick Henry, John Jay, Booker T. Washington, Andrew Carnegie, Thomas Edison, Mark Twain, and Ansel Adams.

Home education is the fastest growing educational alternative in this country, and thousands of parents in Colorado have chosen to teach their children at home. Studies have found that, on average, home-educated students in grades one through twelve score between the 75th and 90th percentiles on national standardized tests.

The tens of thousands of students who are being taught at home save our state and local governments at least one hundred million dollars every year.

Home-educated young men and women regularly serve as interns and aides in the Colorado House of Representatives and Senate.

Home-educating parents should be commended for their extraordinary sacrifice and the commitment they bring to the education of their children.

It is appropriate that Colorado home educators and home-educated children be recognized for their contribution to the diversity and quality of education in Colorado.

Volunteer organizations such as Christian Home Educators of Colorado and hundreds of home-education support groups throughout the state provide a network of support, resources, and encouragement to thousands of home-educating families.

The Members of the Colorado General Assembly, honor, thank, and celebrate home educators and the home-educated children of the state and recognize April 13, 2007, as Home Education Day in Colorado.

Adopted by the General Assembly April 20, 2007.

H.J.R. 07-1037 The recognition of public education and public school teachers in Colorado. Although Thomas Jefferson was committed to the economic philosophy of free enterprise, he maintained that public education was crucial to preserving a free society and could survive only if held under public control.

Horace Mann, Henry Barnard, and other supporters of the "common school movement" in the 19th century argued for the necessity of tax-supported, nondenominational, and publicly controlled schools for American children.

These early proponents of public education asserted that if the public did not control the common school, then sectarian interests would rule and impose their particular political, economic, or religious doctrines on the students, forcing some to withdraw in order to preserve their rights of conscience, and the schools would no longer be equal and open to all.

The basic concept of publicly controlled, free, universal, and equal education for all children has been expanded steadily over the past two hundred years and is serving American children well in the 21st century.

The foundation of freedom and democracy is a strong, effective system of public schools where every child in America, kindergarten through twelfth grade, has the opportunity to receive a free education in a safe, nurturing environment.

Public schools are the backbone of the nation, providing young people with the tools they need to become productive citizens.

More than 93% of all school-age children in Colorado, or 794,026 students, are enrolled in Colorado public schools.

A first-rate public education system depends on a network of partnerships involving parents, teachers, children, and communities.

In addition to a child's family, knowledgeable and skillful teachers can have a profound impact on a child's success in school and throughout life.

Although many people spend their lives building careers, teachers spend their careers building lives.

Tuesday, May 8, 2007 is National Teacher Day, a day to honor and acknowledge the lasting contributions that all teachers have made to our lives.

That the Colorado General Assembly hereby:

- Recognizes and expresses its appreciation to Colorado school teachers for their work and dedication and encourages all Coloradans to continue to support those individuals who educate the state's children; and
- (2) Recognizes the importance of Colorado's system of public schools, which is the bedrock of every community in the state and one of the basic foundations of a free society.

Adopted by the General Assembly May 4, 2007.

H.J.R. 07-1050 Concerning the creation of a joint task force for the study of behavioral health issues. Mental disorders are common in the United States, with approximately 57.7 million people age 18 or older suffering from a diagnosable mental disorder in a given year.

Mental disorders are the leading cause of disability in the United States for ages 15 through 44.

Colorado ranks 19% higher than the national average in per capita consumption of alcoholic beverages.

In 2005, an estimated 19.7 million Americans were classified as current illicit drug users and 126 million aged 12 or older were current drinkers.

In Colorado, there are 17,300 people with a serious mental illness who are left untreated due to a lack of appropriated resources.

Children and adolescents in Colorado experience over one-third of the severe mental health disorders in the state, yet only approximately half of the children from low-income families receive care for such disorders.

There are an estimated 30,000 adolescent substance abusers in Colorado.

Colorado spends just over $64 per capita on publicly funded mental health care, which is 21% below the national average.

Nationwide, $27 per United States resident is spent on publicly funded substance abuse treatment compared to $7.50 spent per resident in Colorado.

Six out of ten people receiving mental health services in Colorado are receiving services outside of the mental health system, and instead must seek care in other systems such as Corrections and Social Services.

In fiscal year 2006, 43% of the youth in mental health treatment had been referred by the criminal justice system.

Several state agencies are involved in the treatment of persons with mental health and substance abuse disorders.

Many other states have organized departments and state agencies to coordinate and create single behavioral health service systems for mental health and substance abuse treatment resulting in the maximization of public funding streams for services and treatment and a better coordination of efforts to treat those in need.

In order to best serve Coloradans, these state agencies need to coordinate their efforts to serve all persons in need and to maximize public funding for mental health and substance services.

The Colorado General Assembly has resolved that there is created a task force for the study of behavioral health funding and treatment, whose duty shall be to study mental health and substance abuse services in order to coordinate the efforts of state agencies and streamline the services provided and to maximize federal and other funding sources.

The task force shall consist of fourteen members including the executive director of the department of education or his or her designee.

The task force shall consult with interested parties to assist the task force in its work, which parties may include community mental health centers, mental health institute administrators, the Colorado mental health planning and advisory council, mental health and substance abuse service users, county commissioners, parole and probation officers, school district representatives, substance abuse treatment providers, law enforcement representatives, hospital representatives, developmental disability representatives, representatives of the judicial system, residential treatment providers, and other persons whose assistance the task force may find helpful.

The task force shall receive information and testimony and shall present a report to the Health and Human Services Committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives on or before January 31, 2008, regarding any findings and legislative recommendations.

Adopted by the General Assembly May 4, 2007.

H.R. 07-1009 National Arts Advocacy Day. The arts are one of the basic expressions of humanity.

The arts represent a unique way of expressing human intelligence and fostering aesthetic experiences.

The arts contribute to the creative, collaborative, and critical-thinking skills necessary for a global work force. A design component of education is to meet the needs of all students.

The arts are inherently valuable as core disciplines themselves and are a valuable and useful component of effective instruction in other core disciplines.

Arts education is one of the academic indicators used to determine the accreditation status of school districts in Colorado.

Arts education has a demonstrated ability to increase attendance rates, graduation rates, and student achievement and to facilitate higher scholastic achievement, especially for at-risk students.

Arts education has a demonstrated ability to remediate delinquent behavior.

There is a widespread concern that high-stakes testing, accountability, and the new Colorado college admission requirements are leading to reductions in access to arts education for Colorado students.

The experience of many schools across Colorado, as well as much research, shows that a strong arts education program, integrated throughout the curriculum, leads to higher academic achievement, higher graduation rates, and greater success in postsecondary education.

The Members of the Colorado General Assembly reaffirm the importance of the arts as an essential part of a classic, well-rounded, strong academic education and encourage school districts to ensure equal opportunity and access to the study of and participation in the arts as part of a core curriculum within the school day for all Colorado students.

GOVERNMENT – STATE

S.B. 07-45 Public records - fees for providing copies. Authorizes custodians of certain public records, including county clerk and recorders, to charge a fee for copies of the records in an amount not to exceed 25¢ per standard page or the actual cost of copies provided in a form other than on a standard page; except that:

A political subdivision is defined to mean every county, city and county, city, town, school district, special district, public highway authority, regional transportation authority, and housing authority within the state.

S.B. 07-210 Amendment 41 implementation establishment of independent ethics commission - membership - appointments powers and duties - advisory opinions and letter rulings - dismissal of frivolous complaints subpoena powers - judicial review. Implements article XXIX of the state constitution, concerning ethics in government, enacted by the voters at the 2006 general election, in the following respects:

• Establishes the independent ethics commission in the office of administrative courts in the department of personnel. Specifies requirements pertaining to the appointment and terms of commission members, the reimbursement of expenses incurred by commission members, and the powers and duties of the commission.

• Requires the major political parties to have equal numbers of members appointed to the commission.

• Requires the commission to prepare a response to a request for an advisory opinion from a public officer, member of the general assembly, local government official, or government employee as to whether particular action by such individual satisfies the requirements of article XXIX not more than 20 business days after the request is made to the commission. Permits any individual who is not a public officer, member of the general assembly, local government official, or government employee to submit a request to the commission for a letter ruling concerning whether potential conduct of the person making the request satisfies the requirements of article XXIX. In such case, requires the commission to issue a response to the request as soon as practicable.

• Specifies that each advisory opinion or letter ruling, as applicable, issued by the commission shall be a public document and requires each such document to be promptly posted on a website that shall be maintained by the commission; except that, in the case of a letter ruling, requires the commission to redact the name of the person requesting the ruling or other identifying information before it is posted on the website.

 Requires the commission to dismiss as frivolous any complaint filed under article XXIX that fails to allege that a public officer, member of the general assembly, local government official, or government employee has accepted or received any gift or other thing of value for private gain or personal financial gain. For purposes of the act, defines "private gain" or "personal financial gain" to mean any money, forbearance, forgiveness of indebtedness, gift, or other thing of value given or offered by a person seeking to influence an official act that is performed in the course and scope of the public duties of a public officer, member of the general assembly, local government official, or government employee.

• Requires the commission to adopt reasonable rules as may be necessary for the purpose of administering and enforcing the provisions of article XXIX and any other standards of conduct and reporting requirements as provided by law. Requires any such rules to be promulgated in conformity with the "State Administrative Procedure Act".

• Authorizes the commission to employ staff.

• Specifies that no subpoena requiring the attendance of a witness or the production of documents shall be issued by the commission unless a motion to issue any such subpoena has been made by one member of the commission and approved by no fewer than 4 members of the commission.

• Specifies that any final action of the commission concerning a complaint is to be subject to judicial review by the district court for the city and county of Denver.

EFFECTIVE April 26, 2007

NOTE: S.B. 07-210 and H.J.R. 07-1029 are companion measures to:

1) set up the ethics commission required under amendment 41 and,

2) ask the Colorado supreme court to clarify some of the confusing language.

A preliminary court injunction of May 31, 2007 suspended the gift bans in sections 2 and 3 of amendment 41 because they "could impair first amendment rights" and that S.B. 07-210 does not suffice to cure the first amendment problems.

While the injunction suspends the gift ban, state employees should adhere to any existing policies regarding gifts, and take steps to maintain the public trust.

The next legal step is a full trial on the merits of the constitutional challenge, after which the court could lift the preliminary injunction or make it permanent. The case could then be appealed. Therefore, the final outcome of the case may not be known for some time.

The ruling does not impact other parts such as lobbying limitations for recent legislators or senior government employees, and presumably, also does not prohibit the ethics commission established by S.B. 07-210 from adopting rules and enforcing other parts of amendment 41.
