

TALKING POINTS

January 28, 2011

At its January 28th meeting, the State Council for Educator Effectiveness (SCEE) refined and came to consensus on statewide definitions of teacher effectiveness and principal effectiveness. In addition, the Council came to consensus on both teacher and principal quality standards and elements to be used in the teacher and principal evaluation systems, respectively.

In addition, the Council deliberated recommendations for measuring teacher quality standards and principal quality standards and came to consensus on a number of key elements of these recommendations.

Finally, the Council prepared for its February 9th presentation to the State Board of Education and engaged in a communications training.
