This unit was authored by a team of Colorado educators. The template provided one example of unit design that enabled teacher-authors to organize possible learning experiences, resources, differentiation, and assessments. The unit is intended to support teachers, schools, and districts as they make their own local decisions around the best instructional plans and practices for all students.

Critical Language: includes the Academic and Technical vocabulary, semantics, and discourse which are particular to and necessary for accessing a given discipline.
EXAMPLE: A student in Language Arts can demonstrate the ability to apply and comprehend critical language through the following statement: "Mark Twain exposes the hypocrisy of slavery through the use of satire."

A student in ______________ can demonstrate the ability to apply and comprehend critical language through the following statement(s):

Unit Description:
This unit allows students to study how various personal and interpersonal factors influence individual’s choices that may result in lack of respect for or intolerance of differences. Additionally, as short term and long term consequences from bullying are accessed, students will have opportunities to recognize the power and importance of positive communication and acceptance of others. Reading strategies, elements of narrative text and characterization will be integrated throughout the learning experiences to support the development of skills such as pro-social behavior, inclusion and healthy relationships. The unit concludes with students reading a short story about bullying. They will then annotate the story for bullying consequences and positive pro-social behaviors to finally create a news story sharing alternatives to bullying.

Considerations:
This team of teachers represented a rural school in the San Luis Valley. The resources in the unit reflect the interests and relevancy in their community (as such, the resources may not apply to other communities but the Learning Experiences certainly do). Teachers will need to be sensitive to experiences students may have had with teasing and bullying from peers.

Unit Generalizations

Key Generalization:
Various personal and interpersonal factors influence an individual’s choices and behaviors and these challenges can create change and affect relationships.

Supporting Generalizations:
Shared experiences typically develop or deepen valuable relationships.
Short term and long term consequences from bullying result from the lack of respect for or intolerance of differences
Positive communication about violence prevention provides the foundation for establishing and maintaining a safe school and/or community.
Story elements and text features can help facilitate a deeper understanding of relationships between characters.
Comprehension strategies help readers develop greater/deeper understanding of various texts.
Performance Assessment: The capstone/summative assessment for this unit.

Claims:
(Key generalization(s) to be mastered and demonstrated through the capstone assessment.)

Various personal and interpersonal factors influence an individual’s choices and behaviors and these challenges can create change and affect relationships.

Story elements and text features can help facilitate a deeper understanding of relationships between characters.

Stimulus Material:
(Engaging scenario that includes role, audience, goal/outcome and explicitly connects the key generalization)

You and your fellow journalists have been asked to report on a story you have read about a student who was bullied. You will present the consequences and the alternatives to bullying found in the story. As journalists you will also create considerations for positive peer behavior and advocacy to promote a culture of pro-social behavior in the school.

Product/Evidence:
(Expected product from students)

After reading a short story about bullying, “A Summer in a Day” by Ray Bradbury (http://www.btboces.org/Downloads/6_All%20Summer%20in%20a%20Day%20by%20Ray%20Bradbury.pdf), students will annotate the story for bullying consequences and positive pro-social behaviors and then create a news story sharing alternatives to bullying. Concepts and skills that should be considered are bullying, pro-social, consequences, characters, story elements, relationships, narrative technique, foreshadowing, and synthesizing. Teams will create a final video news report for a presentation and discuss considerations for positive peer behavior and advocacy to promote a culture of pro-social behavior in the school.

Differentiation:
(Multiple modes for student expression)

Students may watch the movie “A Summer in a Day” and write a news story.

Texts for independent reading or for class read aloud to support the content

Prior Knowledge and Experiences

These ongoing learning experiences build upon a presumed (student) working knowledge of the concepts such as communication, listening, safety, inclusion and working in groups or with a partner. However, it is understood that not all 5th graders have the same prior life experiences when it comes to bullying experiences and peer and family relationships.

Learning Experience # 1

The teacher may introduce reading strategies so students can gain deeper understanding of theme (inferencing, asking questions, determining importance, & synthesizing).

Integration Continuum Color: GREEN  BLUE  PINK  YELLOW

PINK: Work combines some techniques, skills and concepts from both disciplines, but proficiency is uneven.

| Generalization Connection(s): | Comprehension strategies help readers develop greater/deeper understanding of various texts. |
| Assessment: | Students will write a paragraph using their annotation from the text to document their understanding of common themes (courage, perseverance, friendship, empathy). |
