This unit was authored by a team of Colorado educators. The template provided one example of unit design that enabled teacher-authors to organize possible learning experiences, resources, differentiation, and assessments. The unit is intended to support teachers, schools, and districts as they make their own local decisions around the best instructional plans and practices for all students.

This 4-6 week unit focuses on how cultural experiences, societal influences, and adversity impact individuals in those cultures. Through collaborative inquiry and sharing thoughts and opinions, students may examine diverse texts that explore human responses to adverse situations and shape the definition of “hero” in those cultures. Students may demonstrate their understanding of how cultural and societal influences shape and define characters by writing a narrative piece in which they synthesize the ideas and language of the characters they have studied.

In this unit, the unit authors explore works by different authors. We have identified an extended anchor text, Code Talker by Chester Nez, for the unit with students exploring shorter texts from different cultural and historical periods to make literary and cultural comparisons. Teachers could choose to use multiple works by the same author to explore societal influences and cultural experiences in those texts. For example, a teacher might choose to use The House on Mango Street along with multiple short stories, poems, and non-fiction texts by Sandra Cisneros. In this, as in all of our units, text is defined as any media, print or non-print, used to communicate an idea, emotion or information.

Unit Generalizations

Key Generalization: The comparison of multiple texts can reveal the societal influences and cultural experiences of the author.

Supporting Generalizations:

- Understand authors’ word choice, meaning and nuance can inform a student’s own narrative technique
- Collaboration around analysis of textual evidence allows students to examine and convey complex ideas
- Collaborative discussions and the diversity they reveal aid individuals’ observational abilities

Performance Assessment: The capstone/summative assessment for this unit.

Claims:
(Key generalization(s) to be mastered and demonstrated through the capstone assessment.)

| Stimulus Material: | Imagine that a character from one of the texts we have studied has the opportunity to interview the author of the anchor text. The interview is to explore how the author’s cultural experiences and societal influences have impacted his/her writing, particularly the development of characters. You will need to do a close study of the character in order to know his/her motivations and relationships with others in his/her culture, community, or society. In addition, you will need to study the author’s craft to understand decisions he/she has made in creating this character. Your character/interviewer could draw on his/her own experiences as well – as supported from the text – to shape the interview questions.
Role: A character from another work interviewing the author of the anchor text.
Audience: The author of the text.
Format: Interview
Topic: How have cultural experiences and societal influences impacted writing. |

| Product/Evidence: | Using textual evidence from texts we have studied in this unit, students will write a narrative in the form of an interview between a character from one of the texts and the author of the anchor text. The dialogue must reveal the author’s societal influences and cultural experiences which helped shape the character. Students would need to use textual evidence in the interview questions and in the author responses to demonstrate their understanding of the text and the claim above. |

10th Grade, Reading, Writing, and Communicating
Differentiation:
(Multiple modes for student expression)

Students can have a variety of options for this unit, including:
- Creating a dialogue between more than two characters (reading they have done independently beyond the classroom, or include an interview of a relative or community member to bring their perspective on “facing adversity” and heroism)
- The Format in the RAFT above could change from an interview to a round table or panel discussion with a variety of characters from the works as well as more than one author;
- The interview could be a character from the anchor text interviewing the author.
- The length of writing can be changed according to student ability.
- Students may have different texts from which they choose.
- Students listen to oral histories (StoryCorp) about facing adversity and do a StoryCorp presentation.
- ELL students may use texts from their native language.
- Students may have a scribe for their writing or dictate their narrative dialogue.
- Students may craft their own narrative piece(s) conveying cultural influences on them.

Texts for independent reading or for class read aloud to support the content

Prior Knowledge and Experiences

Students should be able to demonstrate reading and note-taking skills, use textual evidence to support ideas, understand literary terms (theme, setting, character, plot, etc.), use basic group discussion skills, use basic writing skills, and write dialogue in narratives.

Learning Experience # 1

The teacher may present a text providing the context for cultural influences in literature (e.g., “Why Culture Counts”) so that students can begin to define culture, conflict, adversity, diversity, and societal influence. [Understanding text]
